Beckford Open Gardens

The reserve had many visitors during the event; the most active were several children who came to assist the Wardens and friends to build 2 smart Bug Hotels. They can be found on the uphill side of the path close to the Rupert Ellis Hide. By now some species will be in residence. The area around the structures will gradually grow back and soon they will be a part of the landscape.

Hopefully they will encourage more bug life onto the reserve, and in turn support a wider bird population. Let us know what you see by recording your sightings on this web page's sightings list.

The hotels are easy to build and just about anything natural can be used to create them, have a look and install one in your own garden.

If you visit please look but leave the contents as they are.
